ARVEST®

Arvest Bank is committed to building strong, stable communities by helping local business owners like long-time Arvest customer and Sheila's Place owner Sheila Davis, who has been running her restaurant for 30 years.

"If you're a small business and you're thinking about Arvest, I would highly recommend it," Davis said. "They have the small bank feel, and they give you personalized service, but yet they're a large enough bank to have the products that you need."

Sheila's dedication is matched by Sarah Lowe, community bank lender in Marshfield, Mo., who has seen firsthand the impact Sheila's Place has had on the community.

"We need our small businesses, and we need their insights and the things they see and experience," Lowe said. "That helps us to be better for our community."

WEBSTER COUNTY

Public Health Unit

Many folks don't realize the myriad of responsibilities that our health department has to protect the health and safety of our residents. One of these responsibilities involves our response to vehicle accidents involving food commodities that happen in Webster County. We responded to one such event early Sunday morning involving over 20 tons of cheese products. The Health Unit is vested with the responsibility of determining if the commodity is safe to release back into the food supply chain or not. If it is safe, then we ensure that it is stored securely until it can be back on the road on its way to consumers. Sometimes, however, as was the case on Sunday morning, the entire load must be disposed of. The damage to this trailer was such that all of the cheese inside was adulterated, leaving it unsafe for consumption.

The Webster County Health Unit is at the ready, 24 hours a day, to respond to public health emergencies impacting our residents.
